Code Enforcement and Social Service Agencies to help

Hoarding seems to be one of the major concerns that have been on the rise. Moreover, for seniors, it is very difficult for the problem to be fixed as it is very costly. Often many community agencies (Protective Services for the Elderly, Senior Services, Probate Court, and Mental Health Authorities) join as a team to help the senior to fix the problem.

Supportive Programs Offered

CT Home Care Program was designed to enable individuals who are at risk for institutionalization the option to stay in the community safely.

Mental Health Waiver (Working for Integration Support and Empowerment)/WISE encompass the recovery orientation adopted by the Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services. Each person in the WISE program presentation to the Health Commission at a later date. Meanwhile shared with the commissioners where they are at this point in the process.

She started on the basis of the report and has already met with the department division heads individually and in focus groups.

It began with a set questions asking the division heads to share their priorities and where they saw champions within and for their division. The group worked on refining the department mission, vision, purpose, and value statements.

Ms. Paulmeno stated that she needed to meet with Mayor Martin, Director Jankowski and the Health Commissioners for their input.

Ms. Parry expressed her interest in meeting with Ms. Paulmeno on a different level to give her input. Dr. Decker followed by stating that the Health Commissioners agreed to meet with her individually.

Ms. Paulmeno shared her professional background with the Health Commission and how it ties in what she is doing now.

She also mentioned the discussions with the health department staff about the services they provide and what may be duplicate services in the community; as well as conversations with Director Fountain about other health department applying to the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB) to become an accredited health department.
