

COVID-19 Unemployment Fraud Guide

The United States Department of Labor, FBI and Secret Service have all seen a spike in fraudulent unemployment insurance claims complaints related to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. U.S. citizens from several states have been victimized by criminal actors impersonating the victims and using the victims' stolen identities to submit fraudulent unemployment insurance claims on-line. This guide will provide CCC clients with an overview of unemployment fraud throughout the United States and solutions for both preventing and managing unemployment fraud claims.

Which states are affected by unemployment fraud?

All states are experiencing spikes in unemployment fraud. While the initial spike of unemployment fraud claims occurred in Washington State; California, Michigan, Massachusetts and Florida have seen larger increases as well.

- 140K Michigan unemployment claims flagged for fraud deemed legitimate by state
- $655 Million in unemployment fraud claims paid in Washington, $334 Million recovered
- Unemployment fraud could cost Ohioans $460 million this year

The above map indicates the states with the largest increase in UI Fraud claims.

Who is responsible for the fraudulent unemployment claims?

The U.S. Secret Service has indicated they have information suggesting that the scheme was coming from a well-organized Nigerian fraud ring according to Roy Dotson, a special agent who specializes in financial fraud at the Secret Service.

How do the criminal actors get the data they use to file the fraudulent unemployment claims?

The criminals obtain the stolen identity using a variety of techniques, including

- The on-line purchase of stolen PII (Personal Identifying Information),
- Previous data breaches,
- Computer intrusions,
- Cold-calling victims while using impersonation scams,
- Email phishing schemes,
- Physical theft of data from individuals or third parties,
- Theft of data from public websites and social media accounts
- Other methods.

How are fraudulent unemployment claims identified?

Most employers become aware of fraudulent unemployment claims by receiving a claim notice from a state unemployment agency for an employee who continues to be employed.

Many victims of identity theft related to unemployment insurance claims do not know they have been targeted until they try to file a claim for unemployment insurance benefits, receive a notification from the state unemployment insurance agency, receive an IRS Form 1099-G showing the benefits collected from unemployment insurance, or get notified by their employer that a claim has been filed while the victim is still employed.

How are employees affected by fraudulent unemployment claims?

Employees that are still employed by the employer are at increased risk for other types of identity theft including:

- Debit/Credit Card Fraud
- Driver's License/ID Theft
- Account Takeover
- Mortgage Fraud
- Tax Return Theft
- Auto lending Fraud
- Employment Fraud

Laid-off workers, some of whom had claims before COVID-19 pandemic, may remain in limbo, for weeks or months.

How are employers affected by fraudulent unemployment claims?

- Benefit Charges if not caught
- Increase in unemployment tax rate
- Trust fund decrease can result in unemployment tax rate schedule change (increase)

How can individuals protect themselves from identity theft?

Look out for suspicious activity:

- Receiving communications regarding unemployment insurance forms when they have not applied for unemployment benefits
- Unauthorized transactions on their bank or credit card statements related to unemployment benefits
- Any fees involved in filing or qualifying for unemployment insurance
- Unsolicited inquiries related to unemployment benefits
- Fictitious websites and social media pages mimicking those of government agencies

Additional steps to prevent fraud:

- Be wary of telephone calls and text messages, letters, websites, or emails that require providing personal information or other sensitive information, especially birth dates and Social Security numbers. Be cautious with attachments and embedded links within email, especially from an unknown email sender.
- Be aware of methods fraudsters are using to obtain PII including:
  - Social Engineering and Phishing Attacks
  - Malicious Code
  - Immediately report unauthorized transactions to financial institutions or credit card providers.

What should employers do if they receive a fraudulent unemployment claim?

Clients of CCC should immediately notify their Claims Analyst, who will notify the state unemployment agency. All other employers who become aware of fraudulent unemployment claims should immediately notify the state unemployment agency of the fraudulent claim and also notify the employee, if applicable.

What should an employee do if they are a victim of fraudulent unemployment claim?

Victims should immediately contact the three major credit bureaus to place a fraud alert on their credit records.

- Equifax
- Experian
- Transunion

Additionally, notify the Internal Revenue Service by filing an Identity Theft Affidavit (IRS Form 14039) through irs.gov or identitytheft.gov.

The victim of identity theft related to fraudulent unemployment insurance claims should also report the fraud to:

- Bank and credit card companies
- Law enforcement,
- State unemployment insurance agencies,
- The employer's human resources department.
- The FBI encourages victims to report fraudulent or any suspicious activities to the Internet Crime Complaint Center at ic3.gov.

Victims may consult identitytheft.gov for help in reporting and recovering from identity theft.

Sample Communication to Employee:

Dear [Employer Company Name] Employee,

We would like to inform you that you have options if you are a victim of Unemployment Fraud. Given the effects of COVID-19 on the Unemployment systems, it has come to our attention that Unemployment Fraud rates are higher than normal. The release of this information is not in the direct control of your employer, but we will do everything in our power to assist our employees who are victims of Unemployment Fraud. Please see some measures below on what to do if you suspect a fraudulent unemployment claim has been filed in your name.

- Inform your state Unemployment Office – Many states are fully aware of the rising rates of unemployment fraud, and therefore handle the matter very carefully. Most states offer front-page navigation on how to notify the state of fraud. Follow the prompts provided by your state, and please direct any questions regarding this, to the state.
- Notify your banks, credit unions, or any financial institutions of the compromise of your personal info – At this time, there is no evidence that fraudulent unemployment claims are leading to the attack of personal finances, but it is always in the best interest of the victim to inform financial institutions, just in case.
- Contact the 3 credit reporting agencies and put a fraud alert on your account.
  - Equifax
  - Transunion
  - Experian
- Change any on-line passwords containing personal information – Many people use personal information such as birthdays, or anniversaries in their on-line passwords. Given this information could be released, it is in the best interest of the victim to change these passwords, so that their secure data is not further compromised.
- (OPTIONAL) Sign up with a security company – In the event that an employee is a victim of fraud (of any kind), they have the option of signing up with a company which will monitor their data for any suspicious activity. [Employer Company Name] partners with The Aura Company to provide low cost security monitoring to our employees. Please contact HR for more information on how to obtain this service.

If you have been a victim of unemployment fraud, we are here to support you. Together, we can make sure that our information security is maintained.
